

All Things Are Working Together For Good

Romans 8:28

I. Biblical truth assures us that all things are working together for good (“And we know”).

- What do we know and what do we not know?

II. God’s sovereignty over all of life assures us that all things are working together for good (“that God causes all things”).

- What is the difference between God’s sovereignty and fatalism?

III. God’s providential care assures us that all things are working together for good (“to work together”).

- If God controls all things, do our actions have real meaning?

IV. God’s infinite love assures us that all things are working together for good (“for good”).

- Does this mean that all evils that come to us in this life will be reversed?

V. God’s marvelous grace assures us that all things are working together for good (“to those who love God”).

- Does the Christian have to love God enough for all things to work together for good?

VI. God’s purposeful election assures us that all things are working together for good (“to those who are called according to His purpose”).

- What is the purpose for which the Christian has been called?

How should we then live?

- Some sobering questions
